Practice Overview

Our barristers practise in courts at all levels throughout the country representing a wide range of individuals and institutions. Our clients range from small, high street solicitors, large City firms and local authorities, to members of the public, who instruct us directly on a Public Access basis. Members of Chambers offer foreign languages and expertise in foreign law, including Islamic law

All our barristers have formidable legal skills -which they complement with being approachable and friendly. Our team's legal strengths, diverse backgrounds and healthy gender balance combine to offer services appreciated by our many different clients.

We offer particular expertise in the interaction between civil and family law. Our 'open door' policy enables every member of Chambers to consult with colleagues appropriately when a case presents overlapping areas of law.

Many of our barristers will accept instructions directly from members of the public, businesses and companies under the Public Access scheme.
