Practice Overview

Catherine Le Quesne is a very experienced practitioner specialising in representing parents and Guardians in care proceedings.

Catherine has a friendly and approachable manner and is able to establish a rapport easily with her clients; her patience enables her to work with parents who have vulnerabilities such as cognitive difficulties, mental health or addiction problems.

Catherine enjoys the challenge of listening to her clients and adopting arguments tailored to their individual instructions. Catherine has been involved in cases involving physical, emotional and sexual abuse and non-accidental injury; she is a composed advocate with a succinct and precise use of language.

Catherine also represents parents in private law proceedings and accepts instructions under the direct access scheme.

Testimonials

"She combined outstanding professionalism with a calm, reassuring presence. Her advocacy in court was exceptional -clear, persuasive, and rooted in both a deep knowledge of the law and a real understanding of the nuances of my case. She was fully prepared at every stage, but also responsive and adaptable when matters shifted in the courtroom… I will always be grateful for her diligence, wisdom, and humanity" -Lay client
